

Historic Preservation Framework Plan

The University has come to appreciate that its special character and sense of place derive not just from Jefferson's buildings, but from the ensemble of buildings and settings which forms the current Grounds. They document the evolution of the University, its sense of itself, and of the broader national idea of what a university campus should be. The 2006 Historic Preservation Framework Plan is an effort to recognize the importance of these later buildings and landscapes. It describes their histories, analyzes their importance to the development of the University, and evaluates their design and current condition. Finally, the plan assigns a preservation priority to each building and to the components of the landscapes, indicating their relative importance to the history and development of the University.
